Report: Document title

Suggestions

- Make sure that your title tag includes your keyword (a greater weighting is given to key phrases at the left of the title tag)
- A compelling call-to-action might help you get a better click-through rate in Google search engine results pages.
- Make title tag unique on each page (Google Webmaster Tools can help you detect problems with the title tags)
- Avoid keyword stuffing in your page title.
- Using the table above to compare your site to your competition.

Report: Headings (H1, H2, H3)

Headings (h1) and sub-headings (h2, h3) are texts that are written between the <h1>..</h1>, <h2>..</h2> and <h3>..</h3> tags.

Report: Headings (H1, H2, H3)

Suggestions

- Using your keyword in H1 or H2 has some positive effects on SEO
- <h1> is the most important heading - use it only once or twice per document and include your keyword there
- Include different keywords in subheadings within the document
- Avoid keyword stuffing in any of heading tags
- Using the tables above to compare your site to your competition

Report: Body text

Body text is the text from your web page without all the HTML tags and code.

Report: Body text

Suggestions

- Make sure that the keyword you are targeting really is in your body text
- Put main keywords closer to the top of the document
- Avoid keyword stuffing in body text and don't hide text through colour by blending text color with background color
- Avoid too high keyword density (>10%) as it may lead to penalty (use synonyms, related words and LSI words - this will help you find them)
- Using the table above to compare your site to your competition (pay attention to keyword density)

Report: URL

URL is the address of your web page.

Suggestions for domain name

- If possible, put your main keyword in the domain name
- For SEO it seems that there is no difference between delimiting words in domain name or writing them together. From marketing standpoint it's better not to delimit words in domain name with dashes because of word of mouth marketing.

Report: URL

Suggestions for URL

- Make "user-friendly" urls; put your keywords there and leave out stop words like "I", "a", "an" etc. Also try to avoid special characters like "&", "?", "=", "$", "%", "^" in the URL.
- Avoid keyword stuffing in URLs and try to keep them within a reasonable length
- For SEO it seems that there is no difference between delimiting words with "-" or "_"
- Use the table above to compare your URL to your competition

Report: Sitemap and robots.txt

Link to sitemap not found. Maybe you don't have a sitemap and certainly you don't have a link to a sitemap in your robots.txt file (or the link is broken).

Your robots.txt file:

```
User-agent: *
Disallow:
```

Sitemap

Sitemap is a file (or multiple files) that list URLs for a site.

- It is important to submit your sitemap to Google Webmaster Tools
- It is important to include a link to sitemap file in your robots.txt file
- If you want to put sitemap on different domain you must put a link to it in your robots.txt file
- All information about sitemaps - <http://www.sitemaps.org/>
- You can also submit your sitemap to Yahoo! Site Explorer and MSN Live Webmaster Center
- If you don't have a sitemap, try sitemap generators

Robots.txt

Robots.txt is a file on your site that tells web spiders (like Googlebot) how to behave on your site.

- Robots.txt should contain a link to your sitemap (for example: Sitemap: <http://acnefreereviews.info/sitemap.xml>)
- All information about robots.txt - <http://www.robotstxt.org/>

Meta robots tag

Meta robots tag is a special HTML tag that tells robots how to behave on that page.

- Use meta robots tag if you want to prevent search engines from indexing the page.
- More information about meta robots tag - <http://www.robotstxt.org/meta.html>
- Your meta robots tag: "follow, all"

Report: Meta description

Meta description is your description of your web page. It is coded in HTML and doesn't appear on the web page. Search engines sometimes display this description in search results.

Suggestions

- Make sure that the keyword you are targeting really is in your meta description
- Create unique meta description for every page
- Put your keyword closer to the start of the meta description
- A compelling call-to-action in meta description might help you get a better click-through rate in Google search engine results pages.
- Avoid keyword stuffing in meta description
- Keep the length of meta description under 160 characters (15 - 20 words) to make sure that your message isn't truncated in Google SERPs.
- Make meta description different from page title (<title>).
- Using the table above (meta description analysis) to compare your site to your competition

Report: Links

Suggestions

- For internal linking - put nofollow attribute on links to unimportant pages (from SEO standpoint - like "Privacy Policy", "Contact us" and other pages)
- Put keywords in anchor texts
- If link anchor is an image then put anchor text in image's "alt" attribute
- Avoid keyword stuffing in anchor texts
- Avoid using un-related phrases like "click here" or "more..." in anchor texts
- Linking to similar external sites will help search engines to determine your site's theme
- Use the list above to check your anchor texts and nofollow attributes

Report: HTML Code and page load time

Optimizing HTML code is part of the SEO. It also increases usability because optimized HTML usually loads faster.

HTML Analysis

#	HTML Size	TABLE tag	js in html	IMG tag	A tag	.js	.css	Validation	Load time

Your site

HTML Size	TABLE tag	js in html	IMG tag	A tag	.js	.css	Validation	Load time
26.04 kb	N/A	2.82 kb	13	49	10	7	check	view

- HTML Size - the size of the html code (the smaller the html size the better)
- TABLE tag - how many table tags found in the code (less is better)
- js in html - the size of code between <script> tags (less is better; js code should be moved to external file)
- IMG tag - how many image tags found in the code
- A tag - how many links found in the code
- .js - how many links to external JavaScript files found in the code
- .css - how many links to external CS files found in the code
- Validation - a link to HTML validation service (don't worry if your code has many validation errors)
- Load time - a link to free tool that analyzes page load time and shows broken images/files

Report: HTML Code and page load time

Suggestions

- 100% Valid code is great but most of the time search engine spiders can process invalid code as well.
- Using less TABLE tag tags may result in faster page load
- Having smaller HTML will result in faster page load
- Avoid broken images on your site as it slows down page load (click on the "Load time" link to get list of broken images on site)
- Put CSS in external files. If you can combine all CSS information into one file it will make your page load faster
- Put JavaScript code in external files. If you can combine all JavaScript code information into one file it will make your page load faster
- If you are using common JS libraries (like jquery, prototype, moo tools and others) use Google Ajax Libraries API (more info here)

Report: Images

For SEO purposes it is useful to analyze filenames and "alt" texts of images on your site.

Report: Images

Suggestions

- Use "alt" texts to describe the image - for accessibility and SEO reasons
- Don't overuse "alt" texts, for example, don't add them to spacer images or layout of images
- Put keywords in "alt" texts if they make sense in the context
- You can also use keywords in filenames (write keywords together or separate them with dashes)
- Avoid keyword stuffing in "alt" texts or filenames
- Use the list above to check your "alt" texts

Report: Meta keywords

Meta keywords are keywords related to your site. They are coded in HTML and don't appear on the web page. Search engines generally don't care about meta keywords but it doesn't hurt to have them. You can get new keyword ideas by looking at your competitor's keywords
